ZURICH, a «leader in sustainability»?

Zurich claims to be a «leader in sustainability» and committed to aligning its operations with the goals of the Paris Climate Agreement back in 2015. Yet it continues to insure oil and gas expansion, which is clearly not compatible with a 1.5 degree pathway. Science is clear, to avoid climate chaos no new fossil fuel infrastructure can be built.

Oil and gas extraction not only drives the climate crisis, but also has devastating consequences for local people and the environment. These include the forceful relocation of entire communities, contamination of drinking water, water shortages, pollution of agricultural soils, earthquakes and health issues. Activists who oppose the impact of oil and gas extraction on their homeland face death threats, persecution, and enforced disappearances.
